Open Access, Webinars and Research Dissemination Opportunities

Place your article in Open Access! Broaden dissemination of your published article!

Many grant funding organizations want broader dissemination of research they fund. Placing your published article in open access provides a broader viewership of your paper. These funding agencies expect expense line items for "Dissemination of Research." Make sure your grants include these line items. And, you can promote links to the open access article in your outreach, tenure packets, institutional marketing and grant applications.

Expand early adopters of your research.

Journal of Emergency Management (JEM) is indexed in PUBMED and Scopus. Let readers get access to your research immediately on publication. We can also place older articles in open access to enhance and extend their reach and longevity.

Let us produce a webinar based on your research. Encourage follow on research and applications.

With our enhanced options detailed below, we can send your article to our entire list of over 20,000 in the field and/or produce and promote a webinar spotlighting your published paper and slide deck created by you. The final video will be referenced along with your paper on the journal's site.

Promote your work across the field.

As we have seen with Corona virus and many other disasters, good research benefits society. Garnering a broader adoption of your work pays dividends across the globe. And, funding organizations want adoption of your research! Let us help promote your research to our broad list of practitioners AND academics in the field.
